What Every Adult Needs to Know

This presentation is especially designed for parents who would like to be better equipped to prevent child sexual abuse from occurring and for adults working in child-serving organizations. The class teaches how to identify signs and symptoms of child sexual abuse, provides an understanding of the dynamics of sexual abuse — particularly the manipulative behavior of perpetrators — and offers techniques to support open communication with children to prevent future victimization. Information about Kristi House services and programs is provided.

Children with Problematic Sexual Behavior

Both boys and girls might display sexual behavior problems without sexual abuse victimization being the underlying cause. Recognizing sexual behavior problems versus normal sexual development is important, as is knowing how to respond. Research suggests a quarter to half of child sexual abuse involves children acting out on other children, with the behavior impelled by exposure to pornography, domestic violence, and other inappropriate sexualized situations.

Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children (CSEC 101)

This workshop provides a basic overview of commercial sexual exploitation of children (CSEC), the extent of the problem and the impact this type of trauma has on children. It also includes tips for identifying and engaging victims of child sex trafficking, and discussion of services needed for healing and reintegration into mainstream society. It is a Florida DCF-approved training for those working with trafficking victims.

Stewards of Children

This nationally recognized, best practice program uses videos, workbook activities and discussion to engage and educate about child sexual abuse and how to keep children safe. College students, working professionals, volunteers at child-serving organizations and other staff at agencies and community-based organizations learn that child sexual abuse knows no socio-economic, cultural, or racial boundaries. Participants learn how to develop practices to prevent, recognize and react responsibly to child sexual abuse.

Children and Traumatic Stress

Child traumatic stress refers to the physical and emotional responses of a child to events that threaten the life of the child or of someone critically important to the child. Social workers, teachers, counselors and others who plan to work with children in other ways are invited to participate in this informative program to gain an understanding of traumatic events and their impact on a child's behavior, demeanor and long-term well-being.

Hurricanes: Supporting Families through Trauma

Studies suggest being informed and prepared for storms lessen the impact of trauma on young children. In this training we provide guidance on how families can better prepare for and respond to hurricanes and the threat of hurricanes in ways that diminish child suffering and trauma in the aftermath of a storm. We identify key factors that can promote resilience in children exposed to tropical weather threats before, during and after the storm.
